LOUISVILLE JOURNAL The struggles of Venice under the leadership of Manin in 1848-9, are pleasantly recorded in M. de la Faye's "Documents et Pieces Authen tiques Laisses par Daniel Manin," just published n Paris. The history here unfolded is an amas ing record of persistent heroism under the most rying circumstances. For about a year and a balf Venice resisted the whole military and mar-time force brought to bear on it hy Austria; hough Asiatic chelara was ravaging its population—though food was scarce, and relief impossile-though confligrations were perpetually ursting out among the honses struck by the en ny's shells-though the emmnnition of the beleged grew less and less by day, and finally windled down to nothing—though the little Ve-etian fleet was deprived of almost all its hands y dis ase, and though Manin himself was con-lantly suffering acute anguish from a complaint of the heart. M. de la Faye does justice to the plendor of this magnificent episode in the annals of Italien heroism; while, on the other hand, he xhibits the miserable double-dealing of Lamar-ine, who, while professing the utmost sympathy exhibits the miserable double-dealing of Lamartine, who, while professing the utmost sympathy with the insurrectionary Italians, twice assented to a bargain for surrendering Venice to Austria. ith the insurrectionary Italians, twice asserting to a hargain for surrendering Venice to Austria, in consideration of France receiving Savoy? Cavity and the Residue are also shown in a surrendering the Residue are also shown in a surrendering the Residue are also shown in a surrendering the Residue and the Residue a mewhat unfavorable light; and M. de la Faye gards the conduct of the English government

The object of the minority will now doubtless be to filliouster and waste time, so that no report or action on Federal Relations can be adopted. The Diannionista don't like the Blarder State Convention. They will make a fight on the election of delegates by Districts, and if they fall, then which they may not do, for I suspect some lurking treachery from seeing certain heads close to gether, and certain mouths often placed mysteriously close to certain ears—then they will to beat off the whole project. The Union mensures ready for the trial, and I trust that the Democrate who have acted so nobly with us thus far may not be led to abandonus at the last.
